

Social Interactions Acquires Two New Directors

Welcome Grace Rice and Mark Zielinski

Cleveland, OH: Social Interactions, a nonprofit organization that prides itself for building social skills, decision making skills, and leadership skills through wildly fun activities, welcomes two new members to its board of directors. Grace Rice and Mark Zielinski are welcome by Dan Mazur, Alex Ford, Greg Ochocki, Matthew Johnson, Josi Heinz, and Dan Radakovich.

Rice joins the team as the Vice President of Business Learning and Design Manager for PNC Bank. She has a rich history of charity, and is also an active board member of the Arthritis Foundation, Great Lakes Region, Northeastern Ohio. In addition, she served as an executive board member (Vice President of Operations) of the National Black MBA Association, Northeastern Ohio.

Zielinski is currently Vice President and Director of Accounting and IT for Paran Management Company, Ltd. In addition to being active in the special needs community, Zielinski can be heard on the Dice Tower board gaming podcast, providing game reviews, commentary, and interviews.

“Both Grace and Mark have extraordinary talents and business expertise, and we are delighted that they are joining the Board of Directors,” said Dan Mazur, Social Interactions’ President. “We are lucky to be able to add these two very experienced professionals to leadership positions in the organization. Doing so will add to the existing skills so that we can continue to provide community programs that fulfill the mission of Social Interactions, which is to improve social skills and leadership skills through wildly fun activities!” The Executive Board of Social Interactions is excited to be growing. They look forward to have the experiences of Rice and Zielinski as a part of their team.

Social Interactions uses dynamic programs, organizations, framework, and events to foster the growth of social interactions skills across groups of all ages. The educational and recreational activities are innovative programs to improve social interactions and build better employees and citizens.
